Marine Safety (Domestic commercial vessels – EIAPP certificate)
Exemption 2024

I, Christopher Barber, National Operations Manager, Operations and a delegate of the Chief Executive Officer of the Australian Maritime Safety Authority (the National Marine Safety Regulator under section 9 of the Marine Safety (Domestic Commercial Vessel) National Law) make this instrument under subsection 143(1) of the Marine Safety (Domestic Commercial Vessel) National Law.

Dated 20 December 2024

Christopher Barber
National Operations Manager

1 Name of instrument

This instrument is Marine Safety (Domestic commercial vessels – EIAPP certificate) Exemption 2024.

2 Duration

This instrument:

- (a) commences 1 January 2025; and
- (b) ceases to have effect on the earlier of:
 - (i) the end of 31 December 2025; or
 - (ii) the repeal of Marine Order 503 (Certificates of survey — national law) 2018.

3 Definitions

In this instrument:

domestic commercial vessel has the meaning given by the national law.

national law means the Marine Safety (Domestic Commercial Vessel) National Law set out in Schedule 1 to the Marine Safety (Domestic Commercial Vessel) National Law Act 2012.

4 Application

This exemption applies to a domestic commercial vessel that has been fitted with a marine diesel engine with propulsion power >130 kW after 30 June 2018.

5 Exemption

The vessel is exempt from the requirement to comply with the issue criterion mentioned in paragraph 9(2)(c) of Marine Order 503 (Certificates of survey — national law) 2018.

Note This instrument of exemption relates to Marine Order 503 (Certificates of survey — national law) 2018 only. Marine Order 97 (Marine pollution prevention — air pollution) 2022 continues to require a marine diesel engine installed on a domestic commercial vessel in certain circumstances to have an EIAPP certificate and associated technical file in accordance with the NOx Technical Code. The requirement is set out in Division 7 of that Marine Order.
